LOVE'S BELIEF.

I believe if I were dead,
And you should kiss my eyelids where I lie
Cold, dead and dumb to all the world contains,
The folded orbs would open at thy breath,
And, from its exile in the Isles of Death,
Life would come gladly back along my veins

I believe if I were dead,
And you upon my lifeless heart should tread—
Not knowing what the poor clod chanced to be—
It would find sudden pulse beneath the touch
Of him it ever loved in life so much,
And throb again, warm, tender, true to thee

I believe if in my grave,
Hidden in woody depths by all the waves
Your eyes should drop some warm tears of regret,
From every salty seed of your dear grief
Some fair, sweet blossom would leap into leaf
To prove death could not make my love forget

I believe if I should fade
Into the mystic realms where light is made,
And you should long once more my face to see,
I would come forth upon the hills of night
And gather stars like fagots till thy sight,
Led by the beacon blaze, fell full on me

I believe my love for thee
(Strong as my life) so nobly placed to be,
It could as soon expect to see the sun
Fall like a dead king from his heights sublime,
His glory stricken from the throne of time,
As thee unworth the worship thou has won

I believe love, pure and true
Is to the soul a sweet immortal dew
That gems life's petals in the hour of dusk,
The waiting angels see and recognize
The rich crown jewel Love of Paradise,
When life falls from us like a withered husk

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

—A recent course of experiments made to determine the heating power of gas shows that one cubic foot of ordinary sixteen-candle coal gas will develop 318 heat units, while water gas will give only about 137 heat units per cubic foot

—Rivers aid in the distribution of plants by bringing down to the valleys the seeds which accidentally fall into the water Thus the southern shores of the Baltic are visited by seeds which grew in the interior of Germany, and the western shores of the Atlantic by seeds that generated in the interior of America A more remarkable fact is that the Gulf Stream has conveyed to the western coast of Europe the fruits and seeds of plants which are indigenous to America in such a state they might have vegetated under favorable conditions of climate and soil

—Dana estimates the upward increase of coral reefs to be an average rate of an eighth of an inch a year, at which rate more than 190,000 years must have been occupied in the formation of a reef 2 000 feet in thickness

—An examination was lately made of a quantity of butter taken from an alabaster vase found in an Egyptian tomb It had evidently been melted and poured into the vase, which had then been sealed After 2,500 years the butter had become only slightly rancid, and had fully retained the chemical properties, taste and general appearance of genuine butter

—In the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford is one of the oldest monuments of civilization in existence, if indeed it is not the very oldest It is the lintel-stone of a tomb which formed the last resting place of an official who lived in the time of King Sent, of the second Egyptian dynasty, whose date is placed by M. Mariette more than six thousand years ago. The stone is covered with hieroglyphics and delicate and finished sculpture.

—Among matters of prehistoric archaeology which of late have attracted attention in Germany are the "high-fields" or "heathen fields," where the marks of ancient tillage are traced on ground now waste or forest-grown These resemble the "elf-furrows" of Scotland, but in neither country has the old agricultural race been identified.

—Swedish meteorologists have furnished material for unlimited speculation by preparing a catalogue of the auroras seen during the space of more than three centuries, that is, from 1536 to 1877 The record shows that in the period from 1722 to 1799 auroras were observed on 4,245 nights

—The life of Mafuka, who lived some time at Dresden, is among the most instructive of ape-biographies, as illustrating the striking intelligence of the anthropoid. Knowing how to unlock her cage with the key, she stole and hid it for future use, she took the carpenter's brad awl and bored holes with it through her own table, when pouring drink from a jug into her cup, she would carefully stop short of overfilling it Her death had an almost human pathos she threw her arms around the neck of the director of the gardens, Herr Schopf, kissed him, and putting her hand in his, lay down and died

—By means of delicate microphones, Prof Milne, of Tokio, Japan, detects shocks of earthquake so feeble as to be unnoticed by other instruments.

—The malady commonly known as the cholera of fowls is caused by a minute living organism. In its natural state this organism is very fatal, but by a peculiar mode of culture M. Pasteur, the French chemist, claims to be able to greatly reduce its virulence. If fowls are inoculated with the attenuated virus he produces they become sick but very few die, and those which recover are secure from the more virulent form of the disorder The fatal effects of the cholera of fowls may thus be prevented. M. Pasteur hopes to be able to adapt his plan of artificial culture to all kinds of virus with the result of securing the means of reducing the severity of all virulent maladies

—Mining at great depths is attended by greater difficulty on account of the heat than is generally supposed. At fifty feet beneath the earth's surface it is believed a point is reached where the temperature is entirely unaffected by the sun or any external influence, the temperature at that depth being consequently uniform in all sections of the globe (volcanic districts, of course, excepted) In this zone the thermometer is found to indicate fifty degrees It has also been shown by further observation that the temperature increases at the uniform rate of one degree for every fifty-five feet of depth, so that at seventeen hundred feet about seventy-eight degrees is indicated. This heat is a severe test of the endurance of the miners, and at one thousand feet greater depth mining is impracticable. According to this rule of increase, the temperature four thousand feet below the surface must be not less than one hundred and twenty-one degrees, and at ten thousand feet the boiling point is exceeded.

OUR GARDEN.

'Don't you think we might have a garden, Joel?' I asked it timidly the first week in April in one of the early years of my married life. "Where is the good?" said my husband, "we have our potato and carrot patch" But Joel was really good natured, and so Anslem, our hired man, had orders to turn in and plough and harrow the last years's carrot patch for my use. It was a little rough, but with the aid of a reel and line I got the beds in order, and will give you a little idea of the crops we planted and sowed All round the edge of the onion bed, I planted with Wethersfield red, I sowed parsley seed, and between the rows of Carter's first crop peas we put in drawn celery for a second crop after the last hoeing Stout Anslem worked the ground with the horses at the time of the carrot and other green crop hoeing, and made the headlands of potatoes I procured strong-rooted currants and gooseberries, and planted them out in rows wide enough apart for the horses to cultivate, and grew every kind of vegetables the first year, except asparagus. Since then a bed of this has been made and is the most eagerly sought and highly prized of them all. Two rows of strawberries, planted along the fence, supply us with mammoth jucunda sufficient for preserves and a good table supply, while by keeping our few raspberries cut back and trained to a trellis, we have fine large fruit, and enjoy it better than any we could buy. The early Vermont potato is a superior variety, and we use early and late sweet corn to prolong the season. It is astonishing how small a piece of ground will supply a family, if it is properly enriched, and attention paid to planting wide, with a view to a second crop Radishes among beets, are soon out of the way. So are lettuce among carrots and at the same time this practice tends to keep to keep the garden tidy and free from unsightly rubbish I sowed some of the low-growing annual flowers along the sides of my vegetable beds, and their bright bloom was always before me when gathering anything for dinner Turnips I found did well, sown late between the rows of onions which were pulled up late in August and laid to dry. The turnip fly does not seem to like the smell of onions, and left ours unmolested. And for the squashes, both summer and winter, which we grew, I found diluted cow manure effectual in keeping off the bugs and strengthening the plants. Up the side of the house grows a a Delaware grapevine now, and half a dozen damson plum trees not far off, supply us with this choice preserve. I keep the rubbish in the compost heap all winter, and make it the place for soap suds and other good things, and when the pile is removed in spring to the garden, its removal leaves a rich spot where one may safely drop a few melon and cucumber seeds, and if covered with a pane of glass placed over a bottomless box, the melon ripen a week earlier than in the open air. Half a dozen tomato plants put into a warm, dry, not too rich corner, supply us for first use, and a few later plants, a second crop, for preserving and canning, may be put in after any of the early vegetables—spinach, beets or radishes—are pulled Cabbage and cauliflower are grown in small quantities, the trouble with the caterpillar being so great that we have to apply air slaked lime several times, and then if the plants chance to be neglected for a few days, we find the leaves are riddled —L L in the Rural New Yorker

THE PARLOR.—Into the shaded parlor the ceremonious visitor is ushered with due solemnity We immediately picture in our imagination the terrible oppressiveness of that best room, where the sun is never allowed to shine for fear of fading carpet and furniture, where the chairs have all a stately, polished and stiff look about them, where the children are never allowed to enter, where what little air there is may never be allowed to change, and where the smell is something akin to that of a family tomb This is the best room, and is too sacred for the use of the family, and is only kept for purposes of ceremony, and for the convenience of those people for whom we do not care a rush Friends come into the pleasant sitting room, where we have a chat in genial fashion, but strangers are doomed to twenty minutes of torture in the grander unaired apartment which we proudly call our parlor Now the principle upon which this room is founded is all wrong Let us have no such room in our house Open the shutters and windows. Admit the sunlight and air If the carpets and furniture fade let us enjoy their use in that condition Let us not have any tomb in our home where all should be cheerfulness Abolish the 'parlor' and enjoy the home That is what it is intended for

A CURIOUS EPITAPH

From the Burying ground of Concord, Mass

God wills us free—man wills us slaves
I will as God wills, God's will be done.
Here lies the body of
John Jack,
A native of Africa, who died
March, 1773 aged about sixty years,
Though born in a land of slavery,
He was born free,
Though he lived in a land of liberty,
He lived a slave,
Till by his honest though stolen, labours,
He acquired the source of slavery,
Which gave him his freedom;
Though not long before
Death, the great Tyrant
Gave him his final emancipation,
And put him on a footing with Kings.
Though a slave to vice,
He practiced those virtues
Without which kings are but slaves.

A STORY FOR EVERYBODY.—"There!" she cried, in an excited voice "I should like to know what's become of that umbrel I sot it up agin the counter when I come in, and afore I could turn round, it's gone—and it was only on Monday that I gin four and six for't!" "What kind of an umbrella was it, ma'am?" asked the polite clerk in his blandest tones "A spick and span new gingham, young man,' was the eager response, 'with an ivry handle on't, and a—' "Like the one in your hand, ma'am, for instance?" "Sakes alive!" she exclaimed And one might have thought she saw a serpent rather than her own "spick and span gingham," with its "ivry handle" clutched fast in her hand. She colored up like a druggist's window, and went off amidst unintelligible excuses She never felt so flustered in all her born days, as she told Jemima Ann when she got home—Boston Transcript

A legislative report on the Maine State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts shows that the work accomplished by the institution hardly justifies the expense to the State, and it is suggested that it should limit its course of instruction to branches of study more nearly related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, even if it is compelled to omit French and German and the higher mathematics, to charge tuition for instruction, and to limit its expenditures to its income.

There were two soldiers lying beneath their blankets, looking up at the stars in a Virginia sky. Says Jack. "What made you go into the army, Tom?" "Well," replied Tom, "I had no wife and I loved war. What made you go to the war, Jack?" "Well," he replied, "I had a wife and loved peace, so I went."

AN INVITATION.

BY VIOLET HUNT

O come into the garden, sweet,
At dawn of day, at dawn of day,
For Love has the key of the postern-gate,
Make no delay! make no delay!

Here's beds of roses white and red,
Where softly shall you tread
Here's crowds of yellow marigolds
To deck your shining hair

Here's meadow lawns and grassy plots,
Where dainty feet may stray
Here's doves to coo and birds to sing
Love's tender roundelay

Here's peaches from the southern wall,
O sweetheart, taste and try
Here's arbors green and trellises
To kiss, and no one by

And all these things await you love,
At dawn of day, at dawn of day,
For Love is here with song and lute,
Make no delay! make no delay!

ANNA DICKINSON

A correspondent of the Pittsburg Telegraph, writing from Philadelphia, gives the following interesting sketch of Anna Dickerson "While seated in the dining room of this (the Continental) hotel the other evening, I glanced up and saw a familiar face and figure coming through the open doorway, the resolute countenance and brisk, well-poised step were those of Anna Dickinson, who is "at home" in the Quaker City, where she began her great and eventful career As usual, she was attired in dark colors made in a style of elegant simplicity, but her hair was rather more elaborately dressed than has been her wont, and fell down her back in quite a cascade of curls. I thought at first that Miss Dickinson must be in poor health, but it subsequently appeared that she was only hungry, her face is thinner than it was, however, and she told me afterwards that she has never been so thin before in her life There is the old time brightness in her looks, however, and "clear grit" is plainly inscribed upon her forehead as it was in those days that tried men's souls when the Quaker girl took up her work in life and made herself a name. How well I remember the night when, a child in a small New York city, I was taken to hear "Miss Anna Dickinson, of Philadelphia," discourse on one of the live issues, her enthusiasm fired even my youthful imagination, and had I been old enough and big enough I certainly should have 'listed on the spot. I can see her yet in her modest black and white checkered silk and pink ribbons as she pushes the short hair back from her forehead with a quick, impetuous gesture, and paces the platform, her hands behind her The next time I saw Anna Dickinson she was acting at the Standard Theatre in her own beautiful play of "'Twixt Axe and Crown," and I well remember the night she arraigned the critics in a speech as powerful as her eloquence could make it The intellectual traits of Miss Dickinson in the role of the heroine of the play, which she his steadily refused to part with, gained her the respect of those who saw her, even if they felt that she did not attain that same status as an actress which she had rejoiced in as an orator, but I am of those who believe that in some part altogether suited to her it would be possible for her yet to make a distinguished success. Brains will tell—even as blood does—in the long run Miss Dickinson has a drama called "Aurelian," originally written for John McCullough in which there is a character termed Zenobia, and in this she may yet be judged. Her present intention is, however, to give readings from this work, which she has arranged for that purpose, she will begin a tour in the West at Steubenville, Ohio, on Easter Monday, the 22d inst Miss Dickinson has been stopping in this house for some weeks, she is engaged in writing, and says that she does not consider that she has done her work properly unless her fingers bear some ink stains at the conclusion of her efforts, pen in hand She steadily refuses an "interview," so I am not at liberty to report her views as to certain matters, but can at least say that she has seemingly lost none of her interest in public events, and that her conversation is as pungent, original, and analytical as she can made it To use a bit of contemporaneous slang, she is characteristically "level-headed"

AN ANECDOTE OF THE CRIMEAN WAR—Our party had "piled" or stacked arms in the approach trench, or covered way, and were engaged in filling sand bags when this warning came The shell burst, the shot flew, and when the smoke cleared away it was found that the concussion had knocked down the arms as well as wounded a number of men

Morrissey, of chicken fame, approached the arms and found to his dismay that his rifle and accoutrements were literally mashed by a fragment of the monster shell. His ammunition pouch was torn open, his belts in shreds, his water-bottle burst, his rifle bent like a piece of gas pipe, his big coat in ribbons and, worst of all to him, his haversack destroyed and his hardtack blown to the winds. Gathering all these up in his arms he hastened with all speed, regardless of running the gauntlet in broad daylight, at the foot of Shell Hill, and rushed forward to the captain commanding holding them out, with horror depicted in his countenance The astonished officers crowded around him, and the captain asked

'What's the matter, Morrissey?"

"L-look, sur! s-s-see what the s s stamer did"

"The steamer! You don't mean to say that the steamer did all that, do you?"

"Yis, sure, s s she did, She f-f fired a s-s shell and struck me"

"Struck you, what! with these things all on you?"

"Yes sur, an' I'm a most kilt, but g-g-glory be to God, I eschaped"

"Well, he certainly must be contused if not hurt internally. Sergeant, send a file of men with him to the camp and hand him over to the doctor"

As Morrissey moved off one of the boys remarked "Well, Morrissey, the poor fellow, ye'er booked for Scutari, shure, an' whin ye get bether ye can practice shootin' round corners wid that ould rifle."

For this feeling remark he received a scowl Mr Morrissey, who was seen no more till a few days before the storming of the city, when he arrived from Scutari to take part in that last struggle and receive his mortal wound.—Boston Commercial Bulletin

In describing the village of Stockton, Me, on the Penobscot, twenty-five miles below Bangor, an Augusta paper says. "The place has but one church and that a Universalist Church No other religious influence has ever been exerted over this community but that of Universalism. And yet, strange as it may seem to thousands who regard Universalism as perniciously immoral, no purer or more orderly or more intelligent class of people can be found anywhere in the State or country. In Stockton there is no rum shop; nor has there ever been any No bar room, or gambling hell or den for drinking and other immoral purposes, has ever found a lodging in Stockton, nor has there ever been known such a thing as a town pauper there, and so trifling is the quarrelling and disposition to litigation in the place that no lawyer has ever thought of earning his 'bread and butter' in the midst of such a people"

A wife said to her husband, who was scolding her, "However cross you may be, there is not a couple who live in greater unanimity than you and I; for we both desire the same thing—you want to be master, and so do I."

The human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something, and those who sit still and inquire, "Why was't it done the other way."

Doctor. "You must drink claret, to build up your system." Patient: "Oh! don't ask me to do that, Doctor. I am a wine merchant. I know how it's made"

As they who for every slight sickness take physic to repair their health do rather impair it, so they who for every trifle are eager to vindicate their character, do rather weaken it.

Sam Slick says: "There are two languages that's universal—the language of love and the language of money, the gals understand the one and the men understand the other, the world over."

"Shall I help you to alight? asked a young gentleman, addressing a bouncing country girl who was preparing to leave a railway carriage. "Thank you, sir," sweetly replied the girl, ' but I don't smoke."

A drunken member of Parliament said to the Attorney-General one day, "I am a self made man, I am." "Then sir," replied the philosophical Attorney General, "the fact relieves the Almighty of a great responsibility.

An exchange says that the man who turned off the gas at a citizens' meeting in Dubuque, Iowa, was never found, but the janitor picked up twenty seven battered hats and eight pairs of spectacles in the morning.

"Pray, what do you want here, bay?" said the horse to the jackass, who had encroached upon his premises. "Neigh, you just go to grass!' said the jackass, whinny discovered a bunch of his favorite food. "Thistle do for me"

A young miss having accepted the offer of a youth to gallant her home, afterwards fearing that jokes might be cracked at her expense if the fact should become public, dismissed him when about half way, enjoining his secresy. "Don't be afraid," said he, "of my saying anything about it, for I feel as much ashamed of it as you do."

A shocking spectacle was witnessed at an interment at Kirkcaldy in Scotland recently. Nearly all the mourners had become so intoxicated that one of them when lowering the coffin into the grave staggered forward and fell into the grave He became jammed between the descending corpse and the side of the grave and was extricated with difficulty

A man up on North Hill is just the maddest man He went to Philadelphia and paid $520 for a pure blooded bird-dog, with a pedigree longer than a chronological table of the kings of England, and the dog hadn't been home two days before the next door neighbor killed him with a brick in his henhouse, where the thoroughbred was sucking eggs Blood is as uncertain and rare in a dog as it is in the South American cattle

A French girl, Hubertine Auclere, utterly dumfounded the officers of one of the Mairies of one of the Paris arrondissements, the other day, by presenting herself and demanding to be inscribed as a voter. The Mayor, after considering her request, declared that, in the present state of the law, her demand was inadmissible Mlle. Hubertine was not satisfied, and she immediately got up a protest signed by herself and ten other citizenesses

He had asked for her photograph. She excused herself with some kind of a story about her negative being lost, and another would have to be secured, &c, when he interrupted her rather warmly with the remark: "What do you suppose I care for your negative, Carrie? It's your affirmative I've been after these six months!" She said nothing, but kind o' turned up the whites of her eyes, and he—well, it is nobody's business what he did.

There is a story told of a blunt old sea captain who was noted for his extreme personal plainness He was at a party one time, and had taken no part in the dance as his hostess had some difficulty in providing him with a partner. At last she led to him a prim and aged spinster, at the same time whispering a few words of apology in his ear "Oh! you needn't make any apology, madam," said he with alacrity, "any old thing is good enough for me."

Here is a story by an English correspondent showing how little some people in that country who buy pictures care about them. A cotton dealer in Manchester, who had made a large fortune by blockade running during the civil war, came one day to a picture dealer and said "I hear that it is considered the right thing to have a gallery of pictures. Will you sell me one complete?' The dealer was only too willing. The gallery was purchased, and the merchant's friends admired it duly, till one day a connoisseur said—"You have a very fine collection of pictures, but you ought to have an example of Cattermole." Off goes the cotton prince to the dealer again. "My friend says I ought to have a Caterpillar; can you procure me one and frame it?" The order was executed and the collection completed

The Russian government seem to be coming to its senses, if we may believe the more favorable reports which reach us from St. Petersburg The accounts of wholesale arrests and other highhanded doings which have been industriously circulated are said to be false, and Gen. Melikoff is described as bent on instituting a milder and more rational mode of control than has been practiced heretofore. If this is true, and if the Czar and his representatives really intend to approximate Russia to the other countries of Europe in its form of government, a brighter day is dawning in that befogged land; but it will require a long time for the Russians, hampered as they are by the leaden chains of silly traditions and despotic usages, to effect anything like a reform in their police regulations.

—A report is in circulation that Senator Cameron and other third term leaders are considering the advisability of withdrawing Gen. Grant's name as a Presidential candidate, and combining upon Senator Edmunds, of Vermont. There is more probability that there is some foundation for this rumor than there is in most of the political gossip of the day. The strong opposition developed against the third term all over the country, and the increasing signs of Blaine's popularity have not sprung up unnoticed by the partisans of the Ex-President, and it is not at all unlikely that they have determined upon a change of program. It may be, however, that Edmunds has been brought forward merely as a decoy to distract attention from the real plans of the Grant leaders, who may, after all, be still determined to press their first favorite. If the effort in favor of Edmunds is genuine, it is a gratifying sign of the force of public opinion. Although Blaine is the choice of the mass of the Republicans, there is no member of the party who would not hail with satisfaction the selection of Senator Edmunds. His party fealty is undoubted. He would satisfy both the stalwart and conservative wings of the party, and above all he is a statesman whose purity is unassailable. In fact he is an unexceptionable candidate in every particular. If it shall be found that Blaine cannot be nominated, there is no man upon whom Republicans could harmonize so well as Edmunds, and if the demand for a strong man in the Presidential office is as universal as our Grant friends assert, there is no man who would be less a man of straw than the St Jerome of the Senate. The only fear we have about him is that were he nominated, the Democrats would set about supporting him for the purpose of getting him out of the Senate, where he is a continual thorn in the flesh of their party, who have so great a fear of his ability and acuteness, that the most unsuspicious looking bill he introduces is handled with as much caution as a can of dynamite would be.

—The New York Herald some days ago published an interesting sanitary report on the condition of the city of Newark, by which it was shown into how unhealthy a large city a healthy little town may grow. It asserts that it "would be very difficult to concentrate in one city more gross violations of important sanitary laws than are shown by the report to exist in Newark. Every source of evil is about them to render pestiferous the air breathed by the Newarkers, but the most energetic of the evils from which they suffer does not come to them in the air. It is in the water. They have two sources of water. They get it from wells and from the Passaic River, and in either source it is equally contaminated. The land on which Newark is placed is pierced by a great many wells and by a great many privy vaults, and these are so near to one another that percolation is constant and inevitable. But the river water is, perhaps, worse than the well water. It is drawn from the Passaic at a point a few miles below where that river receives the sewage of Paterson. In the light of such a fact it is not strange that within a few years the number of cases of diphtheria ran up from five per thousand to one hundred and eleven per thousand."

—The Supreme Court of Indiana decides that the legal name of a person consists of a Christian name and a surname. Any one may have as many middle names or initials as are given to him or as he chooses to take. They do not affect his legal name, and may be inserted or not in a deed or contract without affecting its validity. Nor does a mistake in the middle initial of a name in a deed in any way affect its validity.

—Mr. Tilden and his bankers have been ordered to produce their books in the United States District Court at New-York, at the trial of the famous income-tax suit next May. But it will hardly be done, as some means for another postponement will be discovered to carry it over the Democratic National Convention, when, if Tilden should be nominated, it will be carried over November.

—The alleged deficit of Mr. Tilden, that is, the amount of income-tax which he should have paid, but did not thus far clearly established is said to be over $80 000, and there are several railroad wrecks not accounted for. In one of these it is known that Mr. Tilden and two partners divided $501,000. Notwithstanding this, for that year he returned an income of only $11,000.

—Ex-Minister Washburne, in going to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, is considered to have made a shrewd movement. He is white-haired and about sixty-three years old, he wears a stylish Prince Albert coat buttoned closely about his fine figure, loose morocco boots and fine kids, and he twirls a little gold-headed rattan cane. Paris did all that for him.

—R. A. Raney and Richard Jolly quarreled about the Virginia State debt in Brunswick county, and on Thursday fought a duel with pistols near Smoky-Ordinary. Jolly was wounded in the arm and Raney lost a lock of his hair at the first exchange of shots. They were preparing to fight it out on that line when a constable appeared and arrested them.

—The Democratic State Committee met at Pittsburgh last week and decided to hold the State Convention at Harrisburg on the 28th of April. The Wallace influence prevailed by a vote of 28 to 15, and to this extent settles Randall and Tilden.

—The Princess Louise was out on Saturday for the first time since the accident, caused by the upsetting of her sleigh. Her Royal Highness visited the Canadian Academy of Arts Exhibition.

—Professor Baird does not live in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, but has a private residence on Highland terrace, and he is socially very popular among practical people.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Bristol, March 23, 1880.

EDITOR GAZETTE —There are very few people in Bristol who would be willing to pursue the business of rumselling for a living. Why? Because it is almost universally regarded as a base business, a low business, a disreputable and an unchristian business. That man must have a hard heart who can engage in a business that is so baneful in its consequences. He must have a vicious nature who can willingly do that which is so corrupting, so demoralizing, so destructive of character and good citizenship. He must be lost to all sense of shame who can thus defy decent public opinion, and openly mock at morality and Christian sentiment. There are comparatively few who are so hardened, so sunk in the depths of irreligion, so utterly indifferent to moral obligation and the decencies of life, as to be willing to carry on a business that is demoralizing in all its bearings. Those who are so lacking in virtue and good character as to do this thing, have not the strength of mind to see that the protection of a license does not make it right or honorable or reputable. Even where they point to the law as their defence, the law that sanctions their vile traffic, are they sufficiently mindful of its limitations? Is there any feature of the law that they violate? Do they defy any of its provisions? Do they in any way trample upon the very statute-book that gives their base business a legal existence?

It is said that there is scarcely a liquor dealer in Bristol that is not guilty of violating the law that prohibits the sale of liquor to minors. They openly and systematically ignore it. Ought they not to be punished for their guilt? Though their licenses protect them in their abominable business, they do not give them the privilege of defying all laws as well as all decency. They have no right to sell to minors. They have no right to sell on Sundays. Yet some of them do both. Let temperance people, let good citizens, let the officers of the law, let parents whose boys are exposed to temptation and to immoral associations look into this matter. It is worthy of their most scrutinizing attention. This is an evil that ought to be stopped. Its existence is disgraceful to the community, and it would be a greater disgrace if the offence could not be punished and prevented.

L M N

EDITOR GAZETTE —The republicans of Bristol stand not alone in their disgrace. The town of Middletown, Orange Co New York, has a voting population of about 1500 which is largely republican. This year the women and the prohibitionists united in the nomination of a "woman's ticket" for the five vacancies in the school board. This ticket was ratified and voted by the Democrats, while the republicans not only opposed it with their regular nomination of five of their best men, but resorted to ridicule and trickery of the numerous and questionable kinds known only to politicians. The result was that the whole "woman's ticket" was elected, representing good schools and prohibition, and this was done by democratic votes in the face of the most determined republican opposition.

X X X.

—A dispatch in Tuesday's Philadelphia Times from Erie, Pa, under date of March 22nd, says: "Daniel Conroy, a highly respectable citizen has gone raving mad over the solution of 'the fifteen puzzle.' He is a strictly temperate man, a devoted husband and kind father. For several days he has neglected his business and applied himself constantly to the game, until his brain gave way under the attempt to master the 13, 15, 14. This morning he grew violent, seized his infant child and was putting it on a hot stove when the neighbors rushed in. He was overpowered, and a body of police carried him to jail, where he now lies, a raving maniac. Your reporter visited him to-day and saw him crouched in the cell scratching out the game on the wall. Although handcuffed he has torn off all his clothes, and at this writing is flinging himself against the iron, yelling 'Fifteen, thirteen, fourteen.' The jail physician has ordered him to the county asylum to-morrow. The greatest sympathy is felt for the man and his family."

—Tilden is said to own three railroads, but neither of the three connects with Washington.

☞ WORKINGMEN —Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Billious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

☞ Our readers will please notice the spring card of John Moore & Co in to-day's issue. As they have been a leading store in the Dry Goods line for many years on North 2nd Street what they say can be relied on.

SORTS.

—Shad are not booming.

—Yesterday snow squalls from a clear sky were frequent.

—More snow has fallen in March than during the winter.

—School does not keep to-morrow, as Good Friday is a legal holiday.

—The Columbia is again on the route between Bristol and Philadelphia.

—William H. Stout has been appointed Postmaster at Southamptonville.

—St. James' chapel will be handsome with floral decorations next Sunday.

—The Bristol Post Office has been made an office for issuing French money orders.

—The Easter services of the Methodist Sunday School will be held on Sunday evening.

—A boy in one of our schools being asked what the natives of Peru were called, promptly answered "P(e)ruines."

—Rev. Mr. O'Neil, of East Stroudsburg, Pa., occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church last Sunday morning and evening.

—Rev. Francis Brown, of New York city, preached at the Presbyterian church last Sunday, morning and evening, to large congregations.

—Messrs. David Landreth & Son have opened a branch seed store at No. 4 Arch street, for the accommodation of their New Jersey customers.

—The Delaware and Raritan canal is open for navigation and the steam packets from Philadelphia and Baltimore, have begun their trips to and from New York.

—Arthur Collins has in his possession an old English coin bearing the date of 1700, which was dug up in the cellar of William Blackwood's property on Mill Street.

—No respectable hen would be willing to acknowledge having laid any of the gorgeously decorated Easter eggs so numerously displayed in the confectionery windows.

—Capt. Joseph Quicksell has relinquished his position as pilot of the ferry boat and resumed command of a barge trading between Philadelphia and Troy, N. Y. The new pilot of the ferry boat is Harry Roberts.

—The Bristol Library is indebted to Hon. William Godshalk, member of Congress from this district, for a copy of the narrative of Capt. C. F. Hall's Second Arctic Expedition. It is a valuable addition to the Library.

—An entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, tableaux, and pantomimes will be given at Washington Hall, on Tuesday evening, April 6th, by the pupils of Miss Merriam's school for the benefit of the Bristol Library.

—The Bristol Weekly Times is now under the management of Harry Chambers, who purchased the interest of the late editor for $45. With this fortune the departed editor retired to his native land, New Jersey, as mysteriously as he came.

—William G. Allen, one of our best known citizens, died on Thursday of last week. He was interested in various enterprises of public interest, where his integrity and business sagacity were highly appreciated. The esteem in which he was held by his most intimate associates is shown by the resolutions which were adopted by the steamboat companies, of which he was a director, and which are published in another column.

—Council held a special meeting on Monday evening to take action upon the borough statement. The auditing committee having examined the statement and found it correct it was accepted by council. It is printed in another part of the Gazette and will be found well worth a perusal, showing as it does, how economically the affairs of the borough have been managed under Republican control and direction.

—The last meeting of the Bristol Institute for the season occurred on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance, and the exercises, which were varied and of much interest, were listened to with appreciation. The nominating committee, appointed to select candidates to be voted for, reported, and, after a rather awkward delay, because of the disinclination of anybody to make the necessary motion to bring the matter to a vote, the ticket reported was elected. It is as follows: President, Rev. Dr. Knox; Secretary, Miss Elizabeth L. Peck; Treasurer, Dr. Geo. W. Adams; Executive Committee, A. Weir Gilkeson, Mrs. Edwin Wilson, Miss Sallie M. Hawke, Miss Jennie Parker and Miss Louise Iredell. The regular exercises were commenced with a piano solo by Miss Eva Swain. This was followed by a biographical sketch of Washington Irving, by Miss Sallie Hawke, read by Miss Laura Swain. A vocal selection by Miss Wells, Miss Bartow, Mr. Joseph Swain and Mr. Henry Bartow, was encored, and at the conclusion of the singing Miss Carrie Parker recited a poem entitled, "An Order for a Picture." A short recess occurred, and when the exercises were resumed, the Bristol Orchestra furnished some excellent music, which was highly appreciated. An essay by Rev. Dr. Knox, a vocal solo by Miss Maggie Laing, a reading by Joseph W. Swain, the report of the Treasurer and of the Executive Committee followed, and in conclusion, the orchestra played another selection, which was received with manifestations of approval, and amidst the applause the Institute adjourned until next season. The reports of the Treasurer and the Executive Committee made a very gratifying showing for the Institute, which closed up the year in flying colors and in a prosperous condition, which is a pleasant augury of continued success.

The Masonic Centennial.

The centennial celebration of Bristol Lodge of A. Y. Masons next Monday will be an occasion of unusual interest. The exercises at the Baptist Church in the afternoon will doubtless attract a large attendance. The pews on the side aisles will be occupied by members of the lodge, and the centre pews will be open for the public. The Orchestra and Choral Society will occupy the gallery. —List of letters remaining in the Bristol Post Office, Wednesday evening, March 24th, 1880:—Mrs Alice F. Adams, Sallie Chase, Nancy Davis, Rebecca Holmes, Mrs. Mary Harkin, John Mitchell, Thomas Martin, R. Parkinson, Miss Annie Stackhouse, W. H. Willard, S. H. Willard.

—In the fullness of years and after a useful and prosperous career, William Hawk, one of our most estimable citizens, died suddenly but not unexpectedly on Tuesday night. For a long period he was conspicuous in borough affairs but of late has lived a retired life in the enjoyment of merited rest after the arduous labors of earlier years. He was always interested in benevolent and charitable schemes and in his quiet, unassuming manner dispensed his charities where he thought they would do the most good without attracting attention to himself. He was a staunch temperance man and until quite recently took an active part in all temperance movements, and although his infirmities prevented him continuing active in the work, he never lost his interest in it. His memory will long be cherished for his inestimable qualities as a citizen, and his nobility, uprightness and devotion to all things moral and religious. His funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of Henry M. Wright. Services at the Methodist church at 3 p. m.

—This being what is termed in the Catholic Church, Holy Week, special services in keeping with the solemn season began at St. Mark's this morning with Holy Thursday services. These consisted of High Mass, and a solemn procession of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The side altar in which the Most Blessed Sacrament was kept during the day was becomingly decorated. On Good Friday there will be celebrated what is termed the Mass of the Presanctified, and again the procession of the Most Blessed Sacrament, as, also, the kissing of the cross. In the evening at 7½ o'clock, there will be stations of the cross, and a sermon on the Passion of Our Lord, by the pastor, Father Ward. On Saturday morning at 8 o'clock will begin the solemn benediction of the Fonts, and on Sunday the usual Easter services, at half past eight and half-past ten o'clock, A. M.

—A Bucks county writer to the Germantown Telegraph furnishes the following item:—"The steward of our almshouse, the farmer and a non compos mentis masculine pauper, aged about nineteen years, has had a hearing before Justice Gilkeyson, on the charge of cruelty to animals. The pauper boy was intrusted by the steward with a loaded gun and powder and shot, and sent down to the flats along Neshaminy creek to keep geese and other trespassing creatures off the county farm. He had instructions to shoot at such things as he found trespassing, but to be careful and not hurt them. He succeeded in scaring the geese, but a cow, less timid than her feathered associates in mischief, figuratively speaking, 'laughed in her sleeve' at the boy, who then tried closer shooting and at last sent a well-aimed load of buckshot into the cow's leg and broke it. In addition to this usage, the cow was allowed to remain lying injured as she was for twenty-four hours. The S. P. C. A. got hold of the facts and an arrest of the trio named above resulted. At the hearing the Justice discharged the steward and farmer, but held the half-witted instrument of their injudicious directing as guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined him $10.

—The young people composing the Guild of St. James' church will give an entertainment for the benefit of the Guild on Tuesday evening next, March 30, in the Episcopal chapel. The entertainment will consist of tableaux, music, charades, &c. and the proceeds will be devoted to the Guild.

☞Probably the most successful personal property sale of the season will be held in the Temperance House yard, Langhorne, on the 27th, as the quality and quantity of stock offered exceeds that of any other sale we have noticed this spring.

IN MEMORIAM.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Bay and Ocean Steamboat Company, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Resolved, That this Company has received with profound sorrow the announcement of the death of William G. Allen, late a director. His pure life and unsullied character, entitle him to great respect, and they desire to make record of their appreciation of his life and sorrow at his death.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published, and also sent to the family of the deceased, expressing our sincere sympathy for the bereavement they have sustained by his death.

JOHN W. PAXSON, Secretary.

The Directors of the Delaware River Steamboat and Transportation Company, and Delaware Bay and Cape May Railroad Company also concur in the above resolutions.

DIED.

HAWK.—In Bristol, March 23d, 1880, William Hawk in the 86th year of his age.

The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, from the residence of Henry M. Wright, Bristol, on Friday, the 26th inst., at 2 P. M. Services at the M. E. Church at 3 P. M.

WE ARE HAPPY

To state that arrangements have been perfected, by which private buyers will be supplied with muslins, at the lowest wholesale price, being in many instances lower than some of our largest storekeepers are paying for the same brand of goods. We have the following makes on hand now, and will constantly add to the variety. Price by the piece only; under that quantity one-half cent higher.

Fruit of the Loom, 11½ cts.	Bleached.
Dwight, 10 cts.
Bartlet, 8 cts.
Amazon, 6½ cts.
Dwight, 9½ cts.	Unbleached.
Appleton, 8½ cts.
Wiccassee CC, 7½ cts.
Bangor E, 7 cts.
Blank, 6 cts.

It has been five years since we broke the price in this town, thereby incurring the hostility of some of our old fogy storekeepers, who predicted for us an early downfall. Instead of that, the popularity of our enterprise has increased yearly, and now we are able to do still better for our patrons. Having anticipated the advance in goods, we have laid in a heavy stock at old prices, and are prepared to give our numerous customers greater bargains than ever.

BAKED BEANS.

Oh! how my heart sighs for my own native land,
Where potatoes, and squashes, and cucumbers grow;
Where cheer and good welcome are always at hand,
And custards and pumpkin pies smoke in a row;
Where pudding the visage of hunger screnes,
And what is far dearer, the pot of baked beans.

Let Maryland boast of her dainties profuse,
Her large watermelons and cantaleups fine,
Her turtle, and oysters, and terrapin stews,
And soft crabs, high-zested with brandy and wine;
Ah! neither my heart from my native land weans
When smokes on the table—the pot of baked beans.

The pot of baked beans, with what pleasure I saw it,
Well seasoned, well porked, by some rosy faced dame;
And when from the glowing hot oven she'd draw it,
Well crisped and well browned to the table it came.
Oh! give me my country, the land of my teens,
Of the dark Indian pudding and pot of baked beans.

The pot of baked beans! Ah! the music is too frail
Its taste to descant on, its virtue to tell,
But look at the sons of New England so hale,
And her daughters so rosy, 'twill teach thee full well;
Like me, it will teach thee to sigh for the means
Of health, and—of rapture!—the pot of baked beans.

HE WANTED SOMETHING "FRISKY."—"Got something frisky?" he asked, as he walked into a livery-stable and called for a saddle-horse—"something that will prance about lively, and wake a fellow out of his lethargy? I used to ride the trick mule in a circus, an' I reckon I can back anything that wears hair."

They brought him out a calico-colored beast, with a vicious eye, and he mounted it and dashed off.

Before he had gone two blocks, the animal bucked, crushed through a high board fence, and plunged into a cellar, tossing his rider over the top of an adjacent woodshed, and landing him on the ragged edge of a lawn-mower.

They bore him home, straightened him out, and three surgeons came in and reduced his dislocations, and plastered him up with raw beef.

A few weeks later, he called at the stable, and said if they had a gentle saw-horse with an affectionate disposition, a bridle with a curb-bit and martingales, and a saddle with two horns and a crupper to it, he believed he would go up in the haymow, and gallop around a little where it was soft and it wouldn't hurt him.

DON'T GIVE UP.

What if you have tried different "put up" medicines in vain. Have you not been equally disappointed in some physicians? Do not consider your case incurable until you have made a thorough trial of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. They are chemically pure, of uniform strength, and have come into general use by reason of superior merit. In case of general and nervous debility, consumption, bronchitis, dyspepsia, "liver complaint," scrofulous bunches, ulcers, and eruptions, the Golden Medical Discovery is a speedy and positive cure; while thousands of women who had for years been bed-ridden, have, by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, been restored to perfect health. The introduction of these two remedies has revolutionized the treatment of chronic diseases. Patients are no longer depleted and salivated, as the tonic and alterative properties of the Discovery long since demonstrated a better way. Ladies need no longer submit to the use of the caustic and knife, as the Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to cure the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women. Mrs. Samuel M. Kemper, of Gallandet, Ind., writes, "Your Favorite Prescription and Pleasant Purgative Pellets have saved my life."

The Pennsylvania State College offers free tuition to all who enter its classes. Being liberally endowed by the State, it is able not only to make this proposition, but it also provides kitchens and furnishes the fuel for them free of charge to those students who wish to lessen their expenses by boarding themselves. For full information, address the President, State College, Centre county, Pa.

☞A GOOD HOUSEWIFE.—The good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See other column.

"Dipped into a weak solution of accomplishments," is the term now applied to those of our girls professing to be so highly educated.

☞RE-WORKING BUTTER.—Hundreds of tons of white butter are bought every year, worked over by dealers, colored up and sold for double the price paid the farmers. This fact should convince farmers that they should put their own butter into the best shape for market and so realize all they can from it. It must have the bright color of June, which nothing but Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color can give. Use this color, pack your butter in the best manner, and you will get the top price.

An exchange prints a touching little episode on what a child's kiss could do; it could get a man's mustache all molasses, and milk, and stuff.

☞WHAT AILS YOU?—Is it a disordered liver giving you a yellow skin or costive bowels, which have resulted in distressing Piles or do your kidneys refuse to perform their functions? If so your system will soon be clogged with poison. Take a few doses of Kidney-Wort and you'll feel like a new man—nature will throw off every impediment and each organ will be ready for duty.

The difference between man who digs in the ground and one who digs in books is that the former digs for hire and the latter for lore.

☞TROUBLESOME CHILDREN, That are always wetting their beds ought not to be scolded and punished for what they cannot help. They need a medicine having a tonic effect on the kidneys and urinary organs. Such a medicine is Kidney-Wort. It has specific action. Do not fail to try it for them.

But few men can handle a hot lamp-chimney and say there is no place like home at the same time.

☞It is cruel for parents to let their children suffer with coughs and colds, which in so many cases lead to consumption and premature death. Give Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents a bottle.

If you don't happen to remember the name of your dressmaker, speak of her as Miss Sew-and-sew.

☞"What every one says must be true," that "Dr. Sellers' Cough Syrup" has no equal for coughs and colds. Try it. Price 25 cents.

There is something saddening about a pair of scissors. Alas! they meet but to sever.

MEDICAL.

DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES WILL CURE CONSUMPTION, LIVER COMPLAINT AND DYSPEPSIA.

Read the following Letters from

REV. HENRY MORGAN,

Of Boston. He was Cured by Dr. Schenck's Medicines.

BOSTON, MASS.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK—

Dear Sir—I feel it my duty, for the sake of sick and suffering humanity, to relate to you the following facts:

Last May I was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs, and bled profusely, and, not finding the proper remedy, still again I bled in one month after, and became weaker than before. Then I fully comprehended the danger, and cast about me for an ægis from the impending doom.

Naturally skeptical, and fearful of being duped, having an inveterate abhorrence of empirics, I was slow to trust; and with regard to your medicines, I was obstinate even to a fault. Not until the living witnesses, healed, recovered, with full breathing power, stood before me, would I be persuaded. Not until the efficacious balm was purchased and brought to my room, and forced upon me, would I try it. Two of my parishioners informed me of their wonderful recovery; one was completely cured of bleeding of the lungs, and is now doing battle in the service of his country; the other was a person who was on the verge of death for more than a year; bleeding at every little excitement, and despairing of recovery until she found relief in your Syrup.

PULMONIC SYRUP.

She came before me apparently in the very bloom of health, with brilliant, florid countenance and portly bearing; the last person I should have suspected of having ever been under the pale sheet of New England's fell destroyer—Consumption. She looked to you as the mighty deliverer from its scourge, and to your Syrup as a panacea for the complaint. She was a member of my church, and felt an interest for my recovery; and though sanguine and even enthusiastic, as she had a right to be, because she herself had been healed, yet there she stood, the living visible truth before me. Could I doubt her word? Could I refuse a remedy so mild, so palatable, and yet so efficacious? No! Life was too precious, yet too precarious, to delay a moment. I took six bottles of the Syrup, and recovering rapidly, I went into the country for three months, for the benefit of the air. But, alas! the air could not benefit me without the medicine. I went without that, and after bleeding again, I resolved to come back. I was much fatigued on arriving in Boston, and bled the same night. My case was again critical. Immediately I applied for the Syrup, and soon began rapidly to improve, and recover what I had lost. I am still under treatment, but have nearly recovered. I never weighed so much as I do now. I never looked so full in the cheek, and excepting a nervous weakness in the chest, and a frequent eructation of wind, I am quite strong. These, however, are receding before the

MANDRAKE PILLS AND SEA-WEED TONIC.

I have taken them but a few days, but have found great relief. According to present appearances, I shall be able to preach again very soon, and come out of this sickness stronger than I ever was before.

As our callings are similar in striving to relieve the ills of life—you for the body, I for the spirit; you for the sick, and I in preaching to the poor—I feel it my duty to lay before the world my testimony in favor of your Pulmonic Syrup.

HENRY MORGAN.

P. S.—February 8—Preached this day for the first time after my illness; feel a little sore at the breast, but nothing more. March 1—Preached twice; feel quite strong. March 22—Preached three times, and hold meetings every night; therefore, I may be considered a well man. Thanks to the name of Dr. J. H. Schenck. Under God, your Medicines have cured me.

In reply to the many inquiring letters sent me from almost every Northern State, I say to one and all, I am the man; and wherein I was sick, I am now healed. I am not the only one relieved in those parts, but several of my acquaintances have been recently benefited. One of my parishioners, after spending a large sum on physicians, and growing in nothing better, but rather worse, applied, as a last resort, for the Syrup.

At first it did not agree with him. He then took the Tonic and the Pills to prepare the way for it, and preserved in taking it, until now, instead of going to sea, as he contemplated, to save his life, he has gone to work. And many others I might name.

Very truly yours,
H. MORGAN.

MORGAN CHAPEL, 81 SHAWMUT AV.,
BOSTON, Feb. 5, 1880.

The foregoing letter was given to Dr. Schenck many years ago. I can only say that my lungs were then PERFECTLY CURED.

I have had no return of lung difficulty or hemorrhage from that day to this. I have great confidence in Dr. Schenck's medicines, and recommend them.

HENRY MORGAN.

Springfield, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1880.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK—

Dear Sir—From a feeling of gratitude and a desire to benefit others, I send you this certificate that all may know of the virtue of your remedies. For over one year my case seemed hopeless; I had night sweats, loss of appetite, a very severe cough and a complete prostration of my whole system. My physician pronounced my disease Consumption, I was reduced almost to a skeleton and all the medicines I took failed to give me any relief. I had fully made up my mind that I was incurable, when an acquaintance recommended your remedies. I had little faith in them, however, having lost all hope, but in a very short time after commencing their use, found to my great surprise that I was getting stronger and that my worst symptoms were fast disappearing. I persevered in taking them until I was restored to perfect health. I assure you that language fails to express the gratitude I feel towards you for your skill in preparing so good and great a remedy.

Gratefully Yours,
CATHERINE A. STEWART.

HOOD'S GREAT BOOK OF THE WAR.

ADVANCE AND RETREAT.

Personal Experiences in the United States and Confederate States Armies;

BY GENERAL J. B. HOOD,

Late Lieutenant-General Confederate States Army, published for

The Hood Orphan Memorial Fund

BY

GENERAL G. T. BEAUREGARD,

NEW ORLEANS, 1880.

The entire proceeds arising from the sale of this work are devoted to The Hood Orphan Memorial Fund, which is invested in United States Registered Bonds for the nurture, care, support and education of the ten infants deprived of their parents last summer at New Orleans, (the melancholy incidents of which sad bereavement are still fresh in the public mind.)

The book is an elegant octavo, containing 360 pages, with a fine photograph likeness and a fine steel engraving, made expressly for this work, four large maps of battle fields, bound in handsome gray English cloth, at Three Dollars, or in fine sheep binding, with marble edge, Three Dollars and Fifty cents.—In half bound Morocco, library style, Four Dollars, or in best levant Turkey Morocco, full gilt sides and edges, Five Dollars.

On the receipt from any person remitting by mail or express, of the amount in a registered letter or by a postal order, bank draft or check, a copy will be immediately sent free of postage, registered as second class matter.

The volume is published in the best style of typography, on elegant paper, with illustrations, executed as highest specimens of art.

The author, the subject, the purpose, all alike render it worthy a place in every library,—on every desk—or upon the book shelf of every house in the country.

Agents wanted in every town and county in the United States, and a preference will be given to honorably discharged veterans from the army.

To the ladies who feel a desire to express their sympathy with The Hood Orphan Memorial Fund, the sale of this book among their circle of friends, will afford an excellent way of contributing substantial aid to so deserving a cause.
